

Shown above is the phase diagram for iodine. What are the melting and boiling points of iodine at atmospheric pressure?

In what way would you need to change the conditions to make iodine, initially at room temperature and pressure, sublime?

Describe what will happen if pressure is applied to a sample of solid iodine.